

LORDSBURG!

LOOK OUT FOR

Grand Excursion and Sale at Lordsburg!

The Date Will Soon Be Announced.

The Coming City

OF

LOCATION

The Most Beautiful in Southern California.

PURE PIPED MOUNTAIN WATER FURNISHED AT ONCE.

THE PIPES NOW BEING LAID.

Surface Water 8 to 20 feet--Very Soft and Pure.

The Atchison Railroad Now Building Through the Town.

And the foothill line of the Southern Pacific surveyed half a mile further north--School Buildings and Churches to be erected at once--A portion of the purchase money to be devoted to School and Church purposes.

A FINE VIEW OF THE SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

To the west and the SANTA ANA VALLEY to the east.

THREE SALIENT POINTS:

- No. 1--Artesian water is found under 200 acres of the townsite at a depth of from 75 to 180 feet.
- No. 2--Pure, Cold, SOFT WATER is found under the whole tract at from 8 to 35 feet deep.
- No. 3--Mountain water is brought in from the celebrated Indian Hill artesian wells in iron pipes under 100-foot pressure.

Among the coming towns of Southern California, none are laid out with a view to future growth and prosperity, on a grander scale, or in a more beautiful locality than LORDSBURG, Los Angeles county.

LORDSBURG is located on the Atchison system of railroads--the Los Angeles and San Bernardino line--four miles northwest of Pomona, in a most beautiful portion of the valley, which is as level as a floor over the entire tract, which is a mile square. Through trains will run over this road probably by the 20th of April. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company are now surveying a line from Ramona (Shorb's Station) past the Raymond Hotel and thence along the foothills above the Atchison road to San Bernardino, and probably thence to connect with the main line after going through the East San Bernardino Valley. Thus LORDSBURG will at once have one line of railroad, and within a few months it will have a second.

No Lots will be sold at LORDSBURG until the day of sale, which will be announced hereafter. From this rule there will positively be no deviation. The price of lots will be scheduled at popular prices, and the lots will be sold at these prices. The choice of location will be sold at auction, and the money paid for this choice will go into an improvement fund, which will be devoted to the building of schoolhouses, churches and other public improvements, the details of which will be more definitely announced hereafter.

On the day of sale, which will be duly and extensively advertised, there will be a grand excursion from Los Angeles, and another from Riverside and San Bernardino, over the new line of road, at prices as low as can be had.

It is the intention of the proprietors of this tract to make the coming sale of lots at LORDSBURG the crowning act of the season in real estate operations, and to this end a crowd of people will be gathered on the day of sale. But ample accommodation will be provided for their comfort, so that every one will enjoy the May-day picnic.

The best business men of Los Angeles look upon LORDSBURG as the coming town of the interior, and are making arrangements to invest accordingly. A large number of business men stand ready to commence active building operations immediately after the sale, with a view to occupying the stores built. They will commence at once but for the rigid rule that no lots will be sold until the day of sale has been advertised. The town is now being plotted and surveyed, and in a few days more particulars of the sale will be published and announced.

Cure for Piles.

PILES are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Hosanko's Pile Remedy, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address the Hosanko Medicine Co., Figus, O. Sold by E. F. Heintzman.

THE LITTLE CHILDREN'S DAY.

Sermons by Drs. Schreiber, Dorsey, Garvin, and Stradley—
A Beautiful Day.

Yesterday was a most delightful day and many were tempted to enjoy the bright sunshine, but during church hours hardly a person was to be seen on the streets. All who did not seek the mountains or seaside went to places of worship. At Trinity M. E. church South the day was set apart as "Children's day," and the services and exercises were graduated to the youthful mind. Below will be found a synopsis of several sermons.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

It is Beautifully Observed at Trinity M. E. Church. By appointment of the general conference of the M. E. Church South, yesterday was observed as Children's Day wherever that Church is planted.

An interesting programme, prepared by the Sunday School Secretary, was fully carried out at Trinity Church in this city.

At 10 o'clock, the hour appointed for the beginning of the morning service, the spacious auditorium was well filled by a congregation composed largely of children and young people.

The room had been tastefully decorated for the occasion, and the bright flowers and brighter faces of the children presented a scene of rare beauty.

Suspended over the choir-loft, in front of the great organ, was the motto, "Children's Day," wrought in orange blossoms.

The chairs, altar, communion-table, stands and pews were covered with flowers in various designs—wreaths, festoons, crosses, lilies and bouquets.

Superintendent W. S. Keavis was master of ceremonies. There were songs by the congregation, anthems by the excellent choir of the church, responsive readings from the scriptures, a prayer by the pastor and several appropriate recitations.

The central thought—running through the entire programme—was "Christ, the good shepherd."

Rev. W. B. Stradley was called upon for an address, and spoke in substance as follows: "Children, I am glad to see so many of you here to-day. More than anything else I have missed your bright faces from my congregations. You are to understand that, while this is your day in particular, every day in this house is yours, and if any are to be turned away for lack of room they are to be old people whose characters are formed. I would not want to live in the finest house in town if there were no children there, and I don't want to go to the largest congregation in which there are no children.

I am going to tell you something about the first place in the Bible where Christ is likened to a shepherd. It is the eleventh verse of the fortieth chapter of Isaiah. There it was said, 700 years before he was born, 'He shall feed his flock like a shepherd; he shall gather the lambs with his arm and carry them in his bosom.' You don't know much about a shepherd's life, but these people to whom this was spoken did. All over the green hills of Palestine there were thousands of sheep and goats. The shepherd was strong and brave, and wise, and loving. Such also is this great shepherd. If you would see how strong and wise he is, read when you go home the fortieth chapter of Isaiah. He can weigh Old Baldy with steelyards, and the big hill down by the depot in a pair of balances. He can take the Pacific ocean up in the hollow of his hand. Then he is so wise that he made this beautiful earth without consulting any one. You know how long it takes your mother to make a dress by a new pattern. She puts the paper on the cloth and turns it and talks it all over a long time. But God, our shepherd, cut the earth and spread out the heavens and scooped out the beds of the seas without any trouble.

Like a shepherd he both knows and loves all his sheep. I read, not long since, of a Boston merchant who had eleven children. He went away early in the morning and came home late at night. One day business was dull, so he went home early and concluded to help put the children to bed. About that time his wife came into the room and said, 'Dear, what are you doing?' 'Well, wife, I am putting the children to bed, and hearing them say their prayers.' 'But, my dear, that is one of the neighbor's children which you have nursed.' The father did not know his children and his shepherd. He knows every one of his sheep and lambs. He leads them where the pastures are green and where the waters are bright and cool. Then, like a good, brave shepherd, He keeps off all our enemies. Children, what great enemy have we? (A dozen voices answered, Satan.) Yes, Satan is our great enemy, and he is a cunning one, too. Not long since a gentleman caught on in Arizona a very peculiar bird; it is called a devil hawk, and it is well named. Like Satan it deceives those whom it would destroy. It looks like a pigeon, except the head, and it flies among the pigeons and catches them. But the time comes, by and by, when Satan does not have to use any deceit. He gets men bound, and then he lets them go if they recognize him. One time a ship going out of New York harbor sighted another ship, which had at its masthead three black balls. Do you know what that meant? Well, it meant that the ship was not under control. Something was wrong with the machinery by which it was to be steered. We see lots of men and women who ought to display the three black balls. They are no longer under control. Satan appears, first as a friend, and told them there was no danger in a glass of wine, or a little story, or something else; now they are led captive at his will.

Beware, dear children, of the first step in sin.

There are not five of you here to-day who are not old enough to be religious and members of the church. May God grant that you may all give your hearts to him while they are young and tender.

DR. SCHREIBER.

His Lecture on the Second Commandment.

The Rev. Dr. E. Schreiber lectured on Friday evening on the second commandment, "Thou shalt not make any likeness or image of God." This commandment exercises a decisive influence on man's moral conduct. Judaism teaches that man is created in the "image of God." Paganism created its gods in the image of man. The divinities of the heathens were shaped and formed after the pattern of human beings, with all their foibles, failures, errors and mistakes. Even Hellas, that highly endowed classical nation of antiquity, which exercised such a profound influence upon the human race, represented its gods as a turbulent aristocracy, with Zeus as their chief. This Zeus was fettered by the other gods, and they in turn quarrelled among themselves, envied one another, were jealous of man, and not seldom wounded and beaten by bold human heroes. Murder, theft, adultery, deceit, in short every thinkable vice and crime was committed by the Greek and Roman divinities. All of them were subjected to Ate, the Goddess of Misfortune, and to Moira, the blind fate; hence omniscience of God was out of question. The gods of Paganism indulged in eating, drinking and sensualities, committed vices and crimes, and were jealous and envious of man's happiness. If, then, the gods were such, no wonder that the men who have created such divine ideals could not be of a character to even aspire to a high standard of morality; for the connection between the ideal of morality within us and the ideal of divinity above us must be close; that the deities of the one must necessarily find their expression in the other. Hence the poor ethics of Hellenism, which is simply modern Utilitarianism in ancient garb. Virtue is not the good for the sake of good, but the useful, the pleasant, the agreeable. That ancient longing after moral elevation, that earnest struggle by which man, though conquered physically, gains victory over himself by his moral exertion and firm resolution to purify himself—in short, what Judaism so fittingly calls "to draw near God," we seek in vain in Hellenism. Therefore Judaism forbids idolatry. Man is created in the "image of God," but God ought to be created in the "image of man." "Holy shall be, for I, the Eternal, am holy" means that man can imitate God, can strive after God's likeness, or, as the sages of the Talmud explain it, as God is merciful, just, good, so man should try to do likewise, and thus help to build up the kingdom of righteousness and the temple of humanity.

JESUS' CHARACTER.

"Thine Eyes Shall See the King in His Beauty."

Rev. Dr. Dorsey took for his text at the First Baptist church yesterday morning, the 17th verse of the 33d chapter of Isaiah, as follows: "Thine eyes shall see the King in his beauty; they shall behold the land that is very far off." The first portion of the verse was taken for consideration by the pastor, who said that the king referred to was Jesus, the King of Kings, and the text was a prophecy to mankind at that time that they should see Jesus and that the world would see him. The love and feelings of tenderness to mankind which Jesus possessed has often been spoken of and chosen as a subject for the discourse of preachers, but the text called attention to the beauty of Jesus. The fact that it said that He should be seen in all His beauty shows conclusively that He was beautiful. He was beautiful as to His character. The Bible is full of verses which testify to His character being beautiful and that beauty has been presented to mankind so that all may profit by it. In other words it was meant as a lesson for us, one that we should follow, in order that we may make our characters beautiful. The trouble with people generally is that they think too much of the generosity and kindness and of the lowliness of Christ, but too little of his humanity, which was what he came to earth for. He humbled himself so that he might be a living example to his brethren, to his followers. His object was to bring himself nearer to mankind, so that all should be able to grow more like him, to follow as it were, in his footsteps, and this is necessary for every human being who desires a beautiful character like that of the King Jesus. We must follow as nearly as possible in his footsteps, must endeavor to be as near like him as we can, and then we can take on the beauty of character which he possessed. If we do this, we shall see him in the life which is to come in his beauty, in the land which is very far off.

ELDER GARVIN.

His Sermon on the Subject of "Peace."

At the Christian Church yesterday morning Elder T. D. Garvin spoke on the subject of "Peace."

A portion of the Bible bearing on the subject, was read from St. Paul's letter to the Hebrews, (12, 14th): "Follow after peace with all men and the holiness without which no man shall see the Lord."

I desire to call your attention to that which makes for the peace both of men as individuals, and of the State. You are aware that the introduction of sin here was through the device of Satan, and the weakness of our parents, and this entrance of sin has been the cause all ways since then. When Christ came into the world, He came as the "Prince of Peace." The song the shepherds heard was "Peace on earth, good will toward men," a statement naturally followed by "Glory to God in the Highest." So the coming of Christ was to bring peace. That peace did not come, is not chargeable to God. You are told that much blood has been shed in the name of Christianity. It may be chargeable to some men who have named the name of God, but true Christianity has never shed one drop of blood. The Christian system is eminently peaceful in every part of its work. It is true that the world was at peace at the time of the birth of Christ, but it was a peace established by the absolute rule of the Roman government. This is not peace. True peace is the peace that flows like a river—which Jesus came to establish.

The peace which Paul referred to in the scripture just read, means this: First—That the individual man shall come into a relationship of peace with God. To do this we must accept Jesus Christ, for so long as we refuse to accept the Lord, so long we stand out in open rebellion against God, and this is sufficient to ruin us in time and eternity. God proposes to establish peace between himself and man, but he cannot come to man. He can only hold out the olive branch and say "Peace," and man must return to him. There is no peace for any one who hears the sound of the Gospel and refuses to accept it. To be at peace with God, we must first establish peace with ourselves. Most men have admitted to themselves, "I ought to be honorable and manly," but the passions are constantly appealing to men, and then they are at war with themselves. But finally the individual goes over to the side of his passions, and then he is at peace with himself, with a dead conscience. Then he is past effort; then he is going over to the devil. But before that decision is reached the heart of his understanding says: "Be a man; be a woman." And if you obey that voice you will have peace in your heart. This peace puts us on a plane with the broad men of earth. We are prepared now for the fellowship of God's holy spirit, and should the angel of death call you, you will be prepared to go over. That is the peace that would make a good husband, a good wife, good families, and hence good States, countries and a good world—a universal peace that would mean something, and the very peace that the Bible contemplates. "And He shall judge between the nations, and shall reprove many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Austria is called a Christian nation, so are Germany, France, Russia and England. Why do they keep their immense standing armies, pressing into service the young men of those countries during the best years of their lives, paying them a mere pittance, and heavily taxing the people to sustain them? Why, to keep peace, of course. What does all this mean? It means that they are afraid of each other—that those nations would start what the others have if they could. Is this peace?

When men and women learn to follow Christ, when avarice is not the controlling sentiment, when we can do our public offices because they are respectable and don't get drunk, and not because they carry a certain count or control a certain element, when we can do that, then we can talk about the peaceful reign of Jesus Christ. Then the young gentlemen and the young ladies will be a Christian, our elections will be held as they ought to be, and our officers will be honest men.

As I live, there is no peace for the wicked. There is no peace for nations or men except in the peaceful paths of righteousness.

THE OPERA.

Preparations for the First Grand Performance.

THE PLOT OF "LAKME."

Description of the Arrangement of the Interior of the Pavilion.

The pavilion on Fifth street has undergone a wonderful change. It is only a few weeks since it was a floral bower, and now it is a veritable temple of music; and not only has it changed as regards its seating, but apparently in its shape. Before it was a square hall, and now it has a shape similar to any opera house of great size, and to-night over three thousand people can be comfortably seated. To effect this great change there have been employed about forty carpenters and other workers during the past week, and there was no interruption yesterday, for to-night everything must be in readiness for the huge opera company which will arrive on special trains this morning. It is only by a careful investigation that anyone is able to estimate the amount of work that has been required to transform this building in so short a time. In the first place, the seats had to be arranged in such a manner that every one of the audience could see the stage; in other words, the seats had to be raised tier by tier, until those in the back part were nearly on a level with the first balcony. To do this in a substantial manner required thousands of feet of joists and framework, and on these tiers, bolted together with iron rods, many feet of flooring was laid. The top of this stage is placed in such a manner as to give a view of the stage from all angles. The seats are made something after the shape of the wooden slat seats now used in many of the railway coaches. They are comfortable and fit to the contour of the body, so that these who occupy them will not be tired before the performance is over. They are stained dark colored, and are much more finished in appearance than might be imagined from the short time taken in their construction. These tiers of seats are arranged in semi-circular shape, leaving quite a space between the lowest and the stage. This brings the end seats in a range with the stage and enables their occupants to see all that transpires.

SEAT NUMBERS.

There are five sections and six main aisles. The sections are lettered, commencing from the right looking from the stage or the left from the entrance on Fifth street. The numbers in each of these sections are for every row, and commence on the side toward Olive street. Thus when the visitor enters and walks down the aisle the seats on his left will be numbered one in every row. This section is the best of seats and is the center of the house. The sections in both these balconies are also lettered in the same manner as in the body of the house, and from any portion the full stage can be seen. All of these seats have been so arranged that they can be taken apart and stored away, leaving the floors as level as they were two weeks ago. To light this huge theatre two groups of electric lights have been suspended from the ceiling, each group containing four lights. Besides these there are numerous gas jets around the balcony and in other places where likely to be needed. From the stage on each side partitions will shape the auditorium so that it will cut off diagonal portions of the whole house, making it appear as if it were built to the stage and conforming to the usual arrangements for theaters. This will increase the acoustic power of the house and throw the sound toward the audience. It is anticipated that the consistency will be excellent as the house is at present, but it is found they are defective the arches rafters will be covered with a paper one fourth inch thick prepared especially for such a purpose.

THE STAGE.

The stage has been considerably enlarged since it has been seen by the people of Los Angeles. It now presents a front of 72 feet, which is five feet longer than the stage of the Grand Opera House in San Francisco. It has also been widened and is now 40 feet deep. This will give ample room for the opera company and the grand ballets. The ropes and tackle and the arrangement of drops are in place, and these are so perfectly arranged that the stage hands can reach them without the slightest trouble. The drop curtain which is only a temporary affair, is of red and blue and will be put in place to-day. The stage lights are numerous and the foot lights are to be put in place this morning. The dressing rooms have not as yet been arranged but they will be placed at the sides of the stage both above and below and there is plenty of room in the basement for five hundred dressing rooms. They will be arranged early this morning and before the evening everything will be in order and ready for the vast audience. The arrangement has been under the supervision of Colonel Gray and W. T. Porter has been busily engaged in painting drops and dies, and after this season is over he will continue until the whole stage setting will be completed.

THE OPERA.

"Lakme" to be the Opening Performance To-night. "Lakme" is one of the gems of modern opera. It was written by Leo Delibes, so often spoken of in San Francisco and Eastern papers. "The action of 'Lakme' progresses in India, and the opening incidents of the opera occur near the abode of Nilakantha, a Brahmin, who, with his followers, still abhors the invading race. General and Frederick, officers in the British army, with Rose and Ellen, English ladies visiting the East, while strolling in the environs desecrate the sacred grounds by their presence. Being brought to a sense of their intrusion, they depart, but Gerald remains for the purpose of sketching the design of some jewels which have been forgotten in the garden by "Lakme," the Brahmin's daughter. "Lakme" now enters, and her beauty at once wins "Gerald's" heart. Some love passages follow, but they are rudely interrupted by the return of Nilakantha. It is death for a foreigner to profess consensual love, and "Lakme" hastens her lover's departure. He leaves unseen, but Nilakantha finds traces of his visit, and the curtain falls upon the Indian's oath of vengeance. In the second act, the scene is shifted to a neighboring city, where a great festival is in course of celebration. "Nilakantha" and "Lakme," disguised as penitents, mingle with the throng, the Brahmin intent upon discovering the author of the sacrilege. He commands "Lakme" to sing, and the voice of the loved one makes "Gerald" great himself. His doom is sealed. Night comes on, and when the crowd has scattered and the public square is deserted, "Nilakantha" strikes "Gerald" down. "Lakme," however, has seen the deed, and with the aid of "Hadi," a faithful attendant, she bears the young man, who is not mortally wounded, away. This episode brings the second act of the opera to a close. When the curtain rises on the third, it discloses a forest view, with "Gerald," who has been restored to health and strength through "Lakme's" care, slumbering at the maiden's side. The couple once more exchange assurances of undying love. A chorus of voices is heard in the distance. It is sung by a procession of young people, on their way to the sacred waters which are said to make life perennial. "Gerald" and "Lakme" must essay their powers, and the girl goes forth to fill a cup at the holy fount. While she is absent, "Frederick" re-appears to "Gerald," who has long been missing, and recalls him from romance to reality. The regiment is about to march away, and "Gerald" must be at his post. He promises to answer the roll-call after having bidden farewell to "Lakme." "Frederick" accepts his friend's word and leaves him. "Lakme" returns with the sacred water. As "Gerald" is about to put the cup to his lips, however, the sound of drum and life reaches his ears. He starts, and "Lakme" at a glance comprehends everything. In quiet but overmastering despair she gathers some poisonous flowers and expresses their juice between her teeth. Death follows in a few minutes, the heart-broken creature expiring in "Gerald's" arms, as Nilakantha and his followers enter and behold the sorrowful picture. There seems to be a mistaken idea among the people of this city that no good seats can be found for $1.50. This error should not be allowed to exist. The management states that in a good seat can be found for $1.50 as in the higher priced places. They all command a good view of the stage, and are equally as advantageously situated with regard to sound. Every seat is four inches lower than the one immediately behind it, and those who occupy it will be assured that they will in all respects be comfortable and able to enjoy the unparalleled spectacles presented by the National Opera Company.

News Notes.

The City Council meets at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The telephone line between this city and Monrovia is out of order, and has not worked for a couple of days.

Mike Golden appears to be in fine condition, and leaves for Santa Monica to-day to go into training for the mill with Billy Manning.

Work of excavating for the new Grand Opera House foundations at Pasadena will be commenced to-day. Proposals for material will probably be advertised for tomorrow.

Mr. A. E. Wagstaff will next week issue a publication in this city to be called the Commercial Review. As its name indicates, it will be devoted to the commercial interests of Southern California.

James McGuffey was arrested yesterday by officer Morton and charged with petit larceny. He entered a stand on Main street yesterday morning and while the proprietor, S. Rosenbush, was waiting on another customer, he took a ring and was detected in the act.

The bones of yesterday announced the retirement of Colonel H. G. Oils as editor and the installment of W. A. Spaulding in that important position. It is believed that the liberal views of H. H. Oils and the Gladstone Improvement Company against the Times will now be dismissed.

A well informed gentleman yesterday stated that $15,000 per month was sent out of this city for the purchase of tickets in the Louisiana Lottery. The agent gets 15 per cent on the sale of tickets, so his monthly stipend must be one that causes a feeling of envy to creep over the soul of a national banker.

W. R. Lewis, who is doing the grading for the Ballona Harbor railroad, was in Los Angeles yesterday. He stated that the grading had been completed as far as the town of Hyde Park, where some improvements are already noticeable. He expects to have all the grading done to this city in about two weeks.

As the "cannon-ball train" from San Diego, due here at 4:15 P. M. yesterday, was leaving Cucamonga Station, a flange of a wheel of one of the cars gave way and necessitated a delay of about two hours to that train and the following trains of the Southern Pacific. No injury resulted to any person.

The good people of Pasadena are claiming that city as the railway center of the Pacific coast. They now have three street railways, a dummy railway, a new steam railway being made, the present line of the California Central and the short line of the same, with another company incorporated to build a road from the Raymond to Long Beach and Alhambra Hill. When done there will be eight railways at a single point, besides a cable road incorporated to run from the Raymond to the central and northern part of the town. The claim of the Pasadenaans seems well founded.

Personal Mention.

C. H. Campbell, of Monrovia, is at the Pico House.

Hon. E. J. Coleman and wife are at the St. Elmo.

H. T. Payne, business manager of the Tribune, is visiting San Diego.

Hon. L. C. Morehouse, of the State Board of Equalization, is at the Nadeau.

W. H. English and wife, of Oro Grande, are registered at the Pico House.

Hon. Meyer J. Newmark has returned from Europe and is stopping at the St. Elmo.

J. M. Miller has removed from Calico to this city, and taken up his residence at 446 Hope street.

J. A. Woods, late of this city, but now a prosperous business man of San Bernardino, was in the city yesterday.

Hon. Will T. Green of the Colusa Sun, is in the city on his way home from a visit to Washington City. Mr. Green has held the Democratic banner aloft in this State for many years.

THE VITRIOL CASE.

What Sacramento People say of the case yesterday.

There was nothing new in the vitriol case yesterday. Rozelle and his wife are still in jail, and are becoming reconciled to their quarters. It remained for the Times to dig out a theory of the affair which will require the examination of a physician to substantiate. Rozelle is still in a most dangerous condition, but was slightly better yesterday. The Sacramento Bee says: The vitriol episode at Los Angeles on last Tuesday, an account of which appeared in yesterday's Bee, created a sensation in this city, as Charles H. Petrie, the victim of Mrs. Rozelle's wrath, was known here, especially among railroad men, Petrie, until about two years ago, ran a locomotive out of Rocklin, and at his own request Master Mechanic Stevens transferred him to Los Angeles. Those who knew him here were astounded at the fearful affair, and sympathy was expressed for him, as he was well and favorably known along the line of the Central Pacific. He is about 29 years of age and was a fine looking man. His parents reside in Virginia City, where his father is chief engineer of the Ophir and other Comstock mines. His uncle, Wm. M. Petrie, of this city, was called upon this morning by a Bee reporter. He regretted that his nephew should be the victim of this horrible affair. "He is not a bad man," said Mr. Petrie with much feeling. "He is a sober and industrious young man, and is considered one of the best engineers in the country." Mr. Petrie said he could not understand and did not know what relations existed between his nephew and Mrs. Rozelle. Said a railroad engineer to a Bee reporter: "This woman threw the vitriol in Petrie's face because she was jealous of his attentions to another woman. I will contribute $5 to assist in the prosecution of the fiendish female."

On February 23, 1885, at Auburn, engineer Petrie married a handsome girl named Lillian E. Green, who was employed in the telephone office in this city when it first opened. It appears that they did not live happily together, for during July of last year Lillian commenced proceedings in the Superior Court of this county to dissolve the bonds of matrimony existing between them. She alleged in her complaint that her husband seized her by the throat and violently threw her upon the floor and choked her during June, 1885. She said that he was a man of violent temper and for slight and trivial causes would become violently angry. He was in the habit of calling her vile names. She further alleged that his fits of anger were frequent, sometimes occurring as often as three times a week, which commenced soon after their marriage.

She further charged him with being guilty of adultery. She asserts that on April 1, 1886, in Los Angeles, in a room connected with the engine of the City Fire Department, he had relations with a female whose name she did not give. She therefore asked that she be granted a divorce upon the grounds of extreme cruelty and adultery.

To this complaint Petrie, by two Los Angeles attorneys, filed a demurrer and motion for a change of venue to Los Angeles. The case never came to a conclusion, as Petrie and his wife came together again after a few months. Mrs. Petrie, notwithstanding her divorce proceedings, loved her husband and let the matter drop. It seems, however, that they are now separated for good. She is now in this city.

The assault of the vitriol thrower was a most cowardly and despicable one, and the wretched female should be severely punished. It is a pity that there is not some law to reach the husband. No matter whether his story be true or not, he is a contemptible dog. A man whose wife has been insulted, in place of resenting that insult himself in person, prevails upon her to mar the fellow's convenience in such a brutally infamous manner, is a cur whom it were a compliment to denounce as a human being.

Sudden Death.

Coroner Meredith held an inquest yesterday on the body of Juan Acuña, who died suddenly at Rincon de los Bayes. Deceased was a native of Mexico, 43 years of age. Acuña went to his home after milking his cows and complained of being in pain in his breast. He went to bed and died about an hour afterwards.

CATARRH.

THE TERM CATARRH IS APPLIED to a peculiar disorder of the nostrils and adjacent parts, which grows to an alarming extent and is productive of very dangerous consequences.

The most prominent and characteristic features is a morbid discharge from the nose, varying in its nature at different times.

In some there is an almost constant flow of clear, and fluid, but oftentimes offensive, purulent, or mucopurulent, greenish-yellow matter is secreted, which accumulates in the nostrils or drops into the throat, necessitating its frequent removal by blowing the nose or by the subsequent use of both processes. Sometimes patients are so tormented by the discharge, and often by the odor of the matter, that they are obliged to sleep with their head in a state of elevation, so great is the amount of matter discharged and so fetid is its odor. The patient is greatly annoyed by the constant dripping into the throat of the morbid matter from the head, and as a recompense position naturally favors the flow down ward, his rest is frequently disturbed from this cause. Many sufferers are obliged to lie with the head very much elevated in order to sleep with some degree of comfort.

It often occurs a touch, viscid and offensive phlegm collects behind and above the soft palate, in the passage between the throat and head, adhering to the parts with glutinous tenacity. Its lodgment embarrasses respiration and creates a sensation of irritation and uneasiness in the subsequent morning, which gives rise to a constant and almost irresistible desire to relieve the discomfort by drawing the tongue into the throat, and thus to eject it by the mouth. This practice, popularly known as "hacking," is a characteristic of catarrh of the nose, and is a disagreeable to the one affected as it is disagreeable to those around him.

Again, the morbid matter burdens and deposits itself on the membrane in the shape of dry, hard concretions, which are discharged by way of the nostrils or throat in lumps or fragments of a deep green tint. In some cases these concretions accumulate to such an extent that they completely plug the nose, which obstructs breathing and requires the most violent efforts to dislodge them. These concretions adhere so firmly to the mucous membrane that their removal daily requires the use of a sharp instrument, and frequently they have to be torn from the membrane. Occasionally a solid cast of notable size is expelled, and the patient is greatly relieved. It is indicative of ulceration, which in time may destroy the bony structure of the nose and produce a subsequent fatal issue of that organ.

Cases are occasionally met with in which a thick, viscid, slimy secretion coats the membrane of the nasal cavities and then passes, giving rise to a stench which is really overpowering and sufficiently fetid to poison the atmosphere of a whole room; and there are others in which the secretions of the membrane are expended, causing an unpleasant feeling of dryness, heat and feverishness in the throat, and a condition popularly known as "Dry Catarrh."

The disease speedily extends to the air cavities of the bones of the forehead and face, giving rise to a distressing sensation of heavy weight or constriction over the forehead, especially in the region above and between the eyes, and to a feeling of fullness, heat, irritation and burning in the nostrils near the root of the nose, as well as in the upper part of the throat, above and behind the soft palate. Sometimes there is pain obstinately fixed in some particular point, as in the forehead, on the side of the head, at the back of the neck, or behind the orbits, and occasionally pain manifests itself in the face of so severe a character that it is frequently mistaken for neuralgia.

The breath is always tainted and at times assumes an exceedingly fetid and sickening odor. In some cases it becomes so revoltingly offensive as to render the sufferer an object of disgust to himself as well as to others.

The nasal membrane is thickened and congested, causing the nose to be stopped up, sometimes on one side, sometimes on the other, and often on both, giving rise to a disagreeable study sensation in the head, and occasioning violent and prolonged sneezing.

The voice is weak, indistinct and husky or of a nasal character, displaying a sort of swelling quality. Oftentimes there is a continuous hoarseness and discordance. There is also a sense of irritation in the throat and frequent attempts to swallow, or a feeling of fullness, or a choking sensation in the throat and in other parts of the respiratory system, and constant dryness, for the temporary relief of which they have to swallow frequently. Others, again, speak of constant and nauseous taste in the mouth or throat.

The stomach generally suffers more or less and becomes weak and indigestible. Appetite is capricious and nearly always bad in the morning. The patient is languid, unable to perform mental or physical labor with the usual facility; is nervous, depressed in spirits, at times fearful, timid, agitated and inclined to fretfulness and sleep, the memory weakened and permanent impairment threatened.

The mucous membrane soon becomes morbidly sensitive to unfavorable influences, and in spite of the most careful nursing is affected from the slightest cause, so that at last a breath of wind upon the lining of the nose or throat becomes grievous and gives rise to serious disturbances of the respiratory organs. Thus the patient is subject to frequent attacks of coryza, or cold, and the difficulty spreads from organ to organ, invading the throat, larynx, trachea and bronchial tubes, until, enormous, and further and further, it reaches the finer ramifications of the bronchi, when but a slight impulse is required to send it to the lungs. Catarrh may, and often does, affect other organs, and is especially common in the mucous membrane, such as the stomach, bowels, kidneys, etc.

By the employment of proper inhalations in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased parts in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

OZENA.

Ozena is the professional or technical name given to the advanced form of catarrh in which the mucous membrane of the nostrils and the membrane lining of the nose to the entrance of the nostrils, and in some cases the membrane of the throat, are affected. It is a disease which is naturally hereditary. The disease takes place through the nostrils or through the throat, and is generally of a yellowish or greenish yellow color, frequent, is tinged with blood, and is often attended by an offensive smell. In the language of Dr. Wood, of Philadelphia, "The disease is one of the most obstinate and disagreeable which the physician has to encounter. In bad cases the breath of the patient becomes so revolting as to isolate him from society and to render him an object of disgust even to himself." In some cases pieces of bone become separated and slough off, leaving deep, unhealthy ulcers, which secrete a morbid matter and are extremely difficult to heal.

Continued for some time the sense of smell usually becomes sufficiently unpleasant, and sometimes is one of the most common consequences, and results from its extension through the sinuses, which are situated in the frontal sinuses, impairing memory, and even insanity frequently springs from the extension to the brain. The greatest danger, however, extends downward and affects the lungs. In most cases of pulmonary disease catarrh is present in some degree, and in many instances it causes a large share of the patient's discomfort.

Besides these grave consequences, all of which are liable to spring from a catarrh of the nose, there are others which, if less dangerous, are sufficiently unpleasant, and it occasions great unhappiness to thousands of both sexes, by isolating them and preventing their settlement in life. Catarrh is a running from the nose, with foul breath, and a great deal of mucus is constantly running from the nose, and the patient is obliged to swallow it, and thus to keep the throat constantly moist.

Those who visit Southern California, after trying every known remedy and failing in obtaining health through climatic change alone, would do well to try this wonderful system, which is revolutionizing the whole medical science and effecting cures in this very city in persons given up to die.

THE OPERA.

"Lakme" to be the Opening Performance To-night.

"Lakme" is one of the gems of modern opera. It was written by Leo Delibes, so often spoken of in San Francisco and Eastern papers. "The action of 'Lakme' progresses in India, and the opening incidents of the opera occur near the abode of Nilakantha, a Brahmin, who, with his followers, still abhors the invading race. General and Frederick, officers in the British army, with Rose and Ellen, English ladies visiting the East, while strolling in the environs desecrate the sacred grounds by their presence. Being brought to a sense of their intrusion, they depart, but Gerald remains for the purpose of sketching the design of some jewels which have been forgotten in the garden by "Lakme," the Brahmin's daughter. "Lakme" now enters, and her beauty at once wins "Gerald's" heart. Some love passages follow, but they are rudely interrupted by the return of Nilakantha. It is death for a foreigner to profess consensual love, and "Lakme" hastens her lover's departure. He leaves unseen, but Nilakantha finds traces of his visit, and the
